Annotation: The concept of personality is a comprehensive concept. Every person is born as a person. But its growth is of great importance. Education begins when a young child is one or two years old. From the age of seven or eight, education is added to it. Both are equally given over the years. What he does not know is explained, and based on his interests, he is given career or trade guidance. From this moment, the child takes the first step towards his future. Now he begins to think about how to behave in public and how to develop. This article discusses the importance of personal development in the growth and development of the country.

Key words: Personality, upbringing, development, country, education, socialization, intellectual, progress, importance.

The concept of personality refers to a person and serves to represent a member of society who is psychologically developed, distinguished from others by his personal characteristics and behavior, and has a certain attitude and worldview. In order to become a person, a person must develop psychologically, feel himself as a whole person, be different from others with his characteristics and qualities. In the national model of personnel training, the individual is the main subject and object of the personnel training system, in the field of education is defined as a consumer of services and their implementer.

The implementation of reforms in the social, economic, cultural and spiritual spheres in our country since the first days of independence has placed important tasks in front of the education of the youth of our great country who are mature in all aspects, physically strong, competitive, and intellectually capable. This requires, first of all, comprehensive education of the future generation from a spiritual and moral point of view, to have knowledge, a broad outlook and faith in them. Because the future and prospects of our country depend on the education of this generation.

Spiritual and moral education also has an important place in the formation of a person's worldview, and its effective organization helps to form a spiritual and moral consciousness in a student. Ethical education is a pedagogical process aimed at the formation of moral awareness, moral activity skills and moral culture in the minds of students, the rules and criteria of behavior that are recognized by a certain society and must be followed, and is an important part of social education. Is considered one of the components.

For thousands of years, Central Asia has been a center where diverse religions, cultures and ways of life coexisted and lived in peaceful harmony. Ethnic patience and tolerance have become natural norms necessary for survival and development from the storms of life. Even the conquerors of these territories carefully accepted their precious traditions, the traditions of statehood existing in this area.

Personality development. In order for a person to become a person as a social being, social environment conditions and upbringing are necessary. Under the influence of these, a person develops as a person and becomes a person. Development is a complex process that expresses the essence of quantitative and qualitative changes manifested in the physiological and intellectual growth of a person. Development essentially represents the transition from simple to complex, from bottom to top, from old qualities to new states, renewal, emergence of new, disappearance of old, change of quantity to change of quality. The source of development is the struggle between opposites.

The development of the child's personality is based on the philosophical doctrine that a person is a social being. At the same time, a person is a living, biological being. Therefore, the laws of nature's development are also important in its development.

Also, as a person is evaluated as a whole being, his development is influenced by biological and social laws together; they cannot be separated from each other. A person changes throughout his life. He matures both socially and psychologically, and if the upbringing given to the child is appropriate, he matures as a member of society and takes his rightful place in the complex system of social relations. Because development is influenced by upbringing. In order to correctly see and accurately evaluate the qualities of a person, it is necessary to observe him in the process of various relationships. Therefore, in order to correctly solve the task of developing a person, the factors affecting his behavior and it is necessary to know personal characteristics well. It is desirable to know and take into account the laws of growth and development in order for upbringing to have an effective effect on the child. Thus, there is a two-way relationship between development and education.

Nationalism is clearly expressed in the spirit and spirituality of the people, especially in the development of art and literature. Great works that sing of goodness and purity, humanity and truthfulness, no matter what genre or language they are written in, are known to the world and ultimately increase the international prestige of this nation. In the system of national spiritual values, moral quality, religious values occupy a worthy place and appear as an important condition and factor of national identity. In most cases, moral and religious values are interrelated, and they are equally important in the spiritual growth of the society and in the upbringing of the young generation.

Education is a practical pedagogical process aimed at forming certain physical, mental, moral and spiritual qualities in a person; a set of measures taken to ensure that a person has the characteristics necessary for living in society. Education is the most ancient and eternal value that ensures the humanity of a person. Neither an individual nor a human society can exist without education. Because the values that ensure the existence of a person and society are passed from one generation to another only because of education.

In pedagogical literature, the term "Education" is used in broad and narrow senses. In a broad sense, education means the sum of all influences, activities, actions, and aspirations aimed at forming a human personality, ensuring his active participation in the production of society and social, cultural, educational life. In this understanding, education includes not only the educational work carried out in the family, school, children and youth organizations, but also the entire social system, its leading ideas, literature, art, cinema, radio, television and others. Also, the concept of education in a broad sense includes education and information acquisition. In a narrow sense, education means pedagogical activity aimed at the cultivation of physical development of a person, worldview, spiritual and moral image, and aesthetic taste. This is done by family and educational institutions and public organizations.

Knowledge of moral standards is inculcated in the minds of students in the process of education and upbringing. The result of moral education is seen in the formation of moral consciousness, moral activity skills and moral culture in students.

Moral consciousness is one of the forms of social consciousness, and it is the reflection of the rules and criteria of behavior recognized by the society and necessary to be followed, as well as the idea of national independence in the minds of students.

Moral awareness, moral activity skills, and moral culture are developed in the process of education, discussion, discussion, debates on moral, socio-ideological, economic, legal, aesthetic and ecological topics of the national economy. Working selflessly in various fields, making the name of the Republic of Uzbekistan famous in the world by achieving high levels of success in the fields of science, culture, production and sports, and contributing to the increase of its prestige effective use of information about the lives and activities of individuals is formed on the example of national heroes who have shown examples of patriotism. Moral education is also important in forming the worldview of students, and it is desirable to achieve unity of consciousness, feelings and behavior in its effective organization.

Education and getting information is not part of education in the narrow sense. But any upbringing exists only in close connection with education. Because in the process of education and information acquisition, not only the knowledge of a person increases, but also the development of moral and spiritual qualities is accelerated. Socialization is a long and complex process. Because any society develops a system of social and moral values, ideals, moral norms and rules in the process of development, every child will have the opportunity to live in this society and become a member of it by accepting and learning the above rules. For this purpose, the society influences the individual in one way or another. This effect is realized through education. On the other hand, different ideas and social environment influence the formation of the individual. People come into contact with social norms and moral rules and learn them. The process of socialization has internal contradictions. A socialized person must conform to the requirements of society, "enter" it, oppose negative aspects of society's development, life situations that hinder individual development of a person.

In short, the national spiritual values that have been passed down from generation to generation for centuries serve as the spiritual ground and basis for the national idea. It needs a strong, powerful, effective national ideology for the people, nation, and society to follow. Each component of national spiritual values is important in strengthening the independence of the nation and securing its future. Mutual cooperation of the neighborhood, parents and pedagogues is one of the main factors in the upbringing of a well-rounded, hormonally developed, well-rounded generation that respects our national values. Education of young people who respect our national values and always work with the pride of the nation in their life activities ensures the future and development of the nation.
